With the Statistics Seekers: Drafting the 1940 Census

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Census Bureau is already preparing for its big job next year. Congress has not yet legislated or appropriated for the 1940 census, and the field men won't start going out with their pencils and notebooks until the second of next January. But the preliminary work is now under way.

Czechoslovakia to Protest Agitation Laid to Germans

Slovak Movement for Separation Believed Traced to Berlin

VIENNA IS ACCUSED

Radio Station Broadcast Bitter Attack on Czech Republic

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — Czech officials reported Monday that the Czechoslovakian government had decided to protest to Germany against the activities of minority Germans in this nation, and of a Vienna radio station.

Czechs and Germans clashed Sunday in Brunn, and a Vienna radio station broadcast a defiant anti-Czech speech by Ferdinand Durancsek, communications minister in the Slovak cabinet which was ousted last Friday.

Official sources in Berlin said Hitler would intervene in some way in the Czech situation. The mildest form of intervention would be by diplomatic representation, but the possibility of "stronger action if necessary" also was mentioned by a foreign office spokesman.

Germans Suspected

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — Czechs and Germans clashed in Brunn, near the border of former Austria, Sunday afternoon when Germans marched through the streets carrying swastika flags. Several persons were injured. The clash came in the midst of a tense situation over Slovak independence in which German support of the Slovak separatists is suspected.

Mounted police intervened and made several arrests, but many persons were injured before the antagonists could be separated. The German residents of Brunn, munitions manufacturing center in the Czech part of Czechoslovakia, were celebrating Germany's memorial day.

Those participating in the clash were described in reports from Brunn as "youths" who were the black uniforms of the German National Socialists of Czechoslovakia.

Red Rebellion in Madrid Crushed

Miaja, Moderate Republican Commander Restores Peace

MADRID, Spain — (AP) — General Miaja's National Defense Council announced Sunday night that all Communist strongholds had surrendered unconditionally and that the uprising against the peace program with Spanish Nationalists had been crushed after six days of fighting. The two chief leaders of the revolt were captured.

Lieut. Col. Francisco Buena, former commander of the Second Army Corps, was said by the National Defense Council to have been captured with his general staff at Ciudad Lineal, five miles east of Madrid, and brought here.

Another leader of the uprising against the coup that displaced General Premier Negrin a week ago Sunday, Lieut. Col. Jose Barcelo, former commander of the First Army Corps, was said to have been captured at La Pedriza in his stronghold in the Guadarrama mountains.

The last Communist stronghold in the capital, itself, fell when General Miaja's loyal troops drove the defenders out of the unfinished government offices at the top of Castellana avenue after heavy siege guns had laid down a 15-minute bombardment. The shelling caused sections of the walls to collapse, killing many of the Communist defenders. Machine gun bullets peppered others inside. Communists in Chamartin, a village at the northern edge of Madrid, also surrendered.

With fall of the die-hard Communist who had opposed Miaja's program of peace with Spanish Nationalists, 3,000 Republican prisoners who had been in the hands of the insurgents, were freed. These included the Socialist civil governor of Madrid.

35 Car Owners Are Charged Violation Traffic Laws Here

Campaign Against Double Parking Is Launched Monday

1 PERSON "HOSTILE"

Warning Against Ignoring Tags Issued by Police Chief Stuart

Thirty-five persons had been charged with violation of Hope's traffic laws at 2 p. m. Monday as city police launched a campaign against double-parking and other traffic violations.

Chief of Police Claud Stuart said he expected the list to reach 50 or higher by night fall.

Following orders issued by the Hope city council, police began a "round-up" of traffic violators early in the morning. Most go the violations are for double-parking which carries a fine of from $1 to $25 on conviction.

Persons who find their automobile "tagged" are urged to report to the police station in the Arkansas Bank & Trust company building, take the matter up with the chief of police—or report to municipal court next Monday morning.

Some of the automobiles left double parked and unoccupied were tagged without the officers obtaining the name of the owner.

In these cases, the license number of the automobile is taken for future reference in the event the owner fails to appear at either the police office or at municipal court.

Discussing the drive against traffic violators, Chief Stuart said:

"Out of the 35 cars tagged, there was only one owner who became hostile—the others seem to take it in a good-natured manner."

"Some of the car owners are appearing with their tickets at the police office, while others have not shown up—probably waiting to appear in court."

"One man came in, admitted that his car had been tagged for double parking, but said that he had torn the ticket up. In this case a new ticket is issued. The man paid $1 and was allowed to continue on his way. He was en route to Nashville," Stuart said.

"Of course we expect some car owners to ignore the tags, tear them up and fail to report at either the police station or municipal court. These are the persons who will be dealt with most severely. We will check their license number through the state police, revenue office and have other ways."

"We hope that will not be necessary to issue subpoenas for the arrest of those failing to report, but this is one method that we can resort to in order to bring them into court—regardless of who the person might be," Stuart said.

El Dorado Pastor to Speak Tuesday Night

Dr. David Shepperson, pastor of First Presbyterian church of El Dorado, will address the men of the First Presbyterian church of Hope Tuesday night at the monthly supper meeting.

The men will assemble at 7 p. m. New officers will be elected for the new church year. The retiring president is N. T. Jewell.

Wife of U. S. Jurist Is Taken by Death

TULSA — Mrs. Franklin E. Kennamer, 54, wife of the United States district judge, died Sunday night at the home after a long illness.

Mrs. Kennamer, an invalid, was brought here a week ago from Phoenix, Ariz. where she had been for some time.

A son, Phil, under 25-year sentence on a manslaughter charge, was released from McAlester penitentiary on parole November 2 to go to Arizona to be with his mother. He obtained employment there.

The parole board recommended clemency for young Kennamer, convicted in the Tulsa slaying of John Corral, Jr. because of the illness of his mother.

Great Blizzard Is Raking the North

Traffic Paralyzed as the Worst March Snowstorm Grips Boston

By the Associated Press
Heavy rain, sleet, snow and floods in the northern half of the country during the week-end hampered traffic, crippled power lines, and left at least 24 dead Monday.

Snow continued Monday in the Eastern states, but rain and sleet ceased in the Middle West.

In Boston a March snowstorm—the worst in Massachusetts since the great blizzard of 1888—held much of New England in its grip, claimed 10 lives, closed highways, grounded planes, paralyzed shipping, and left the region with a flood hazard.

The fall of wet, sticky snow averaged a foot in depth over most of New England; the accompanying northeasterly gale piled drifts six feet high in some sections.

More than 60 Massachusetts schools closed, and the port of Boston "was all but closed to navigation during the storm."

Welfare Checks Will Be Released

Repeal of Abington Measure Restores U. S. Aid to Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK — March welfare checks will be mailed to 22,000 needy persons in Arkansas this week.

Payments, halted for two weeks by the Social Security Board because of legislation that muddled the state welfare situation, will be released by Miss Jane Hoey, director of the Public Assistance Division of the SSB, she said.

Miss Hoey's action was prompted by repeal of the Abington reorganization act which became effective March 2.

The Frierson-Byrd-Gutensohn repeal bill was signed by Governor Bailey Friday in an effort to regain federal aid.

March checks have been written and are ready for distribution, probably Monday, Secretary John R. Thompson of the Arkansas Welfare Commission, said when advised of Miss Hoey's decision.

The board had withheld a grant for this month on the ground new provisions of the Abington act were not in conformity with federal requirements.

"The board now feels there is nothing in the way of making the grant," Miss Hoey said.

The new welfare board set-up under the Frierson act, to be composed of eight of the nine former members, will be organized at a meeting in Governor Bailey's office at 11 a. m. Monday. Its first action will be to reorganize a summary of the old plan of operation (under which federal funds were obtained for two years) to the SSB. A copy of the plan will be airmailed with assurance that no federal money has been spent since said was suspended March 2 and that personnel remains the same.

Hempstead Infants Have 5 Living Grandmothers

Birth of twins last week to Charles W. Sampson, negroes, living three miles north of Olan, brought about a family phenomenon. The infants, a boy and a girl, have five living grandmothers who range in age from 43 to 98. This situation is not believed to have an equal in the country.

The grandmothers are Mamie Sampson and Lucy Walker; the two great-grandmothers are Lucilla Walker and Leticia Brown and the great-great-grandmother is Annie Gamble.

C. C. Sampson, husband of Mamie Sampson is the children's only living grandfather.

English and Irish Nearer Peace, But Ulster, Eire Still Quarrel

DeValera Wants Ulster to Rejoin Original Ireland

But Religion and Wealth Make Protestant North

ULSTER NOW FREE

Fear Minority Status If Joined to Catholic Ireland

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
DUBLIN—St. Patrick's, 1939, finds a greater measure of "appeasement" between Ireland and Great Britain than has ever been known.

Yet one of the greatest matters of dispute ever to arise between them still remains—the separation of Ulster (North Ireland) from Eire (Irish Free State).

This is a question which Eamon de Valera, President of the Executive Council and Minister for External Affairs, will keep to the foreground just as steadily as Adolf Hitler's demands for a return of Germany's colonies.

In almost all other respects, de Valera has fulfilled his program. Eire is today a real Irish republic.

It has its own president, its Parliament, its ministers responsible to Parliament. It has its own taxation and expenditure of revenue, its own army and police, its own diplomats abroad.

Trade Issue Dead
Settlement of the long trade war between Ireland and England has brought benefits for the Irish farmer and the British manufacturer. Britain knows that, in case of war, she will not have a hostile Eire at her back. A menace to Britain would be a menace to Eire's best market.

Continued partition of Ireland, however, does not please de Valera or his countrymen. Government leaders in Ulster, arguing against a union with Eire, offer two prime arguments:

1. That Ulster's Protestant majority would become a suppressed minority in an all-Ireland community.
2. That busy Belfast, prosperous and wealth Ulster capital and industrial center, would be taxed to death.

The de Valera faction counters as follows:

1. No Protestants in Eire are being oppressed. During the past 10 years, there have been several of them in the cabinet.
2. While Eire pays its way, Ulster has been receiving from Britain more than it has been paying out in taxation.

Anti-Partition Protests
According to 1937 figures, all Ireland has a population of 4,245,607. Only 1,278,753 of these live in Ulster. All Ireland has an acreage of 20,375,925, of which but 3,351,444 acres are in Ulster.

In other words, North Ireland, created by the British parliament act of 1920, has only one-sixth of the territory, three-tenths of the population of the whole island.

The partition situation exploded recently as the Republican army intensified terrorist activities with bomb plantings at several points in Great Britain.

Scotland Yard officials seized from one suspect details of the "S-plot," reputedly detailed instructions from the army to sabotage English industries and gain access to supply depots, after making a "respectable gesture" by joining the British civilian defense corps.

People of Eire charge that Ulster's statutory regulations enable authorities to make arrests without warrants and on mere suspicion. They claim their friends have been apprehended in this manner and held in jail for an indefinite period without trial.

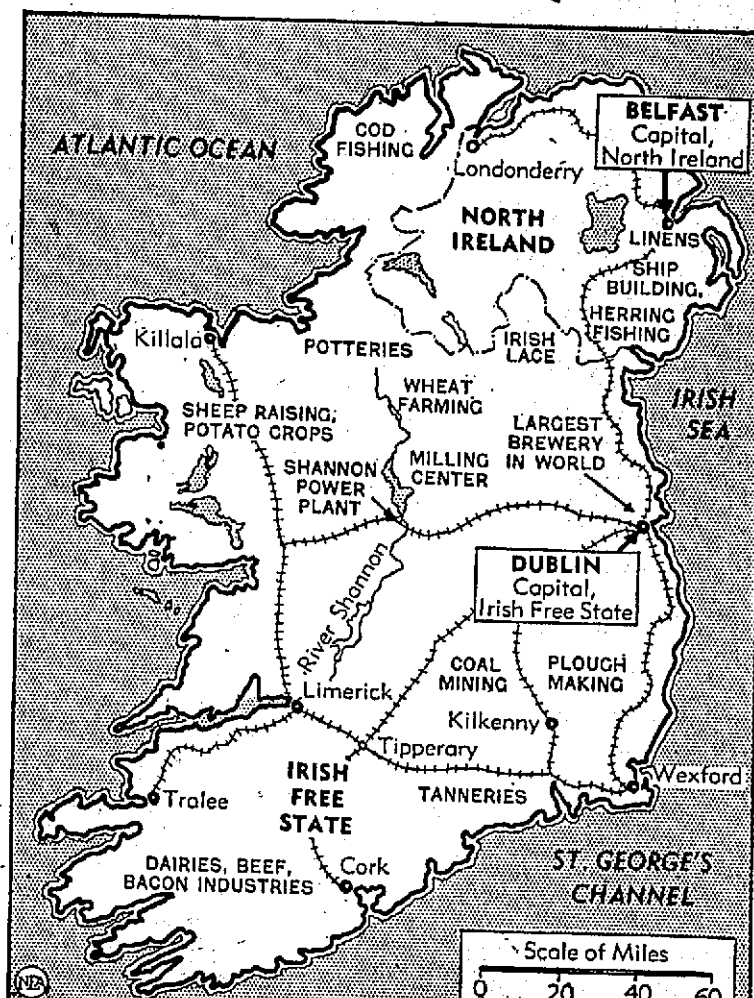

Peach Orchard to Be Full Bloom in Week

NASHVILLE, Ark. — The Highland peach orchard, which annually attracts thousands of visitors who travel hundreds of miles to see the pink blossoms, will be in full bloom within a week, according to orchard veterans.

The weather has been ideal for fruit this season and a bumper crop is expected. Unless a freeze comes later, it is estimated that 300 cars of peaches will be shipped from this district this season.

The blossoms afford a most colorful sight to sightseers. It is possible to drive for miles and miles on highways flanked on each side with orchards. The Highland orchard is the largest peach orchard in the world.

Kennedy Hears Praise of Roosevelt From the New Pontiff

VATICAN CITY, Rome, Italy—(AP)—Pope Pius the 12th was quoted Monday by Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London, as expressing "great admiration for President Roosevelt because he has always admired his stand for religion."

The pope received Kennedy, who was the president's personal representative, at Sunday's coronation ceremony. Mrs. Kennedy and eight of the nine Kennedy children were in the private audience.

The crown of the popes was placed Sunday on the head of Pius XII, 262nd pope of the Catholic church, in a ceremonial of medieval splendor. A festive crowd of about 350,000 persons thronged St. Peter's square to watch the coronation on the balcony of St. Peter's basilica, the first out-of-doors coronation in almost a century.

Within the mother church of Catholicism, a huge congregation of princes, prelates, diplomats, pilgrims, priests and faithful flocks witnessed the coronation mass and investiture. Vatican authorities said 71,000 tickets had been issued.

75 CCC Enrollees to Be Discharged

Private Employment Is Asked by Alton Camp Officials

During the period from March 22 through March 31 the CCC camp located six miles south of Hope on the Louisville highway will discharge 75 enrollees who have been members of the Civilian Conservation Corps for the last two years.

The 75 enrollees being honorably discharged will be replaced with new recruits.

The 75 enrollees are being discharged because of the two-year limitation of service as set up by the national congress.

Among this group of boys will be found some very efficient workers who have been trained in various lines of work while a member of the CCC, and a large number are going out with the hope of finding employment.

Among those boys being discharged are bulldozer operators, tractor operators, grader operators, truck drivers, carpenters and carpenter helpers, rock masons, draftsmen, cooks, hospital attendants, foremen, store clerks and firemen.

There are also some boys qualified to fill jobs as shipping clerks, plane table men, roadmen, chainmen and experienced farm workers.

Every effort is being made by the supervisory personnel of the camp to locate jobs for these boys. Any person having information is urged to get in touch with Lieutenant Oliver C. Harvey, commanding officer; R. C. Ellen, project superintendent; or William R. Summerville, camp educational advisor.

Salaried Officers Must Pay Up in 3-Month Period

Holt Ruling on New Law Affects State, County and City

POLL TAX CHANGE

New Deadline for Payment Is October 1 Instead of June 15

BULLETIN
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Bailey indicated Monday afternoon following a public hearing that he would veto a bill by Representative Weisenberger of Hempstead county to increase the gasoline tax from one-quarter cent to one-half cent and split it between cities and counties for road and street work.

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Attorney General Jack Holt held Monday that the 1939 act prohibiting payment of salary to state, county and city employees delinquent in their personal tax payments would become effective 90 days after the March 9th adjournment of the General Assembly.

To file with their superiors statements signed by county tax collectors that personal and property taxes up to 1937, payable during 1938, have been paid.

Failure to comply with the terms of the act would result in stoppage of salary checks, Holt advised.

In another opinion Holt said poll taxes issued before midnight June 15, 1938, would be valid for voting purposes in any election between now and October 1.

The new act changes the deadline for poll taxes from June 15 to October 1.

Governor to Sign

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Bailey announced Monday he would sign a bill validating approximately $100,000 in excess claims against county highway funds provided a copy of the attorney general's opinion under which the claims were allowed is filed with him.

Welfare Head Remains
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—John R. Thompson continued as executive officer in charge of the State Welfare Department setup Monday when the second reorganization of the department within 30 days was completed at a meeting in the office of Governor Bailey.

The governor named Thompson welfare commissioner and reappointed all nine members of the state commission created by the Abington welfare act of 1939.

Harrison Opposes More WPA Grants

It Appears Doubtful, However, That New Fund Will Be Defeated

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Harrison (Dem., Miss.) served notice over the week-end that he would oppose President Roosevelt's expected request for an additional $150,000,000 to ride the WPA through until July 1.

The Mississippian, a leader in the successful fight to reduce the WPA appropriation from the $875,000,000 requested by Mr. Roosevelt to $725,000,000, said he was opposed to voting any new funds.

The president's supplemental estimate of the WPA's needs is scheduled to go to congress Monday or Tuesday and economy advocates have indicated it will stir up a sharp fight. They conceded, however, it appeared doubtful the new relief request could be defeated.

Some house members have taken a stand similar to Harrison's, but on the other hand, several Republicans who voted against the $875,000,000 figure in the senate have said they would favor additional funds if the president termed them necessary. Members of an appropriations subcommittee decided to make a separate investigation of relief needs before acting on any presidential request.

House Republicans said they planned to make economy an issue in consideration of the $160,000,000 Interior Department appropriation bill, up in that chamber Monday. Party leaders said they would propose a 10 per cent cut in the appropriations.

A Book a Day

It is hard to imagine the germ of anti-Semitism taking root in the average American community, to say nothing of a quiet New England village. But that is precisely what occurs in Dorothy Canfield's latest novel, and the result is a tensely biting story, extraordinarily timely. It is "Seasoned Timber" (Harcourt, Zane: $2.50).

But you should expect no purge, no rioting, none of the outward violence which has made anti-Semitism one of the world's greatest contemporary problems. Miss Canfield's story is not that. It gets no hotter than the Vermont school election on which its turns. At the same time it becomes peculiarly penetrating, and you feel it doing so. The picture she paints of a typical American community torn on the issue of Jewry.

The trouble begins in the town of Miss Canfield's story when a school trustee leaves $1,000,000 to a sorely pressed academy; but he leaves it on the condition that Jews shall be excluded. The community, thereby, faces a grave and extraordinary decision. How it decided, of course, is Miss Canfield's story.

But you will find it an incomparable picture; the town split wide open, gray-haired Principal T. C. Hulme threatening to resign rather than accept the money, still others convinced of the Jewish menace. The whole, Miss Canfield has tied together with a touching romance.

All in all, it would appear the Canfield pen grows sharper with the years. —P.G.F.

NEW YORK — It is a poignant moment whenever one of yesterday's idolized headlines reappears in the gray present.

The other day Billy Rose selected hundreds of shapely water-nymphs for his forthcoming Aquanade. After dozens of corymbes had stepped before the juring stand, one aspirant, clad in a scanty bathing suit, stepped forward.

She had received no unusual consideration while she waited her turn to be viewed and interviewed. But she was instantly recognized by Rose and his henchmen.

She was Gertrude Ederle, object of national adulation after her feat of swimming across the English Channel.

Her hearing impaired, her avoirdupois increased, Miss Ederle has been quietly spending the years as a swimming instructor around Manhattan. Now if Rose decides that she is to be in the Aquanade, she will clamber back into the limelight.

The other day a busload of Broadway stars—among them Olsen & Johnson, Clyde Hager, Hildergarde and the Andrews Sisters—journeyed to Ossining to entertain convicts at Sing Sing.

One of this delegation was amazed, he says, to discover that the inmates of that grim institution are tunes of the day.

Through the Rialto contingent was fearful, before passing through the prison gates, that an explanation for the phenomenon of swing would have to be made to the shut-ins, it was somewhat startled and surprised to learn that the prison population was well-informed about jitterbugs.

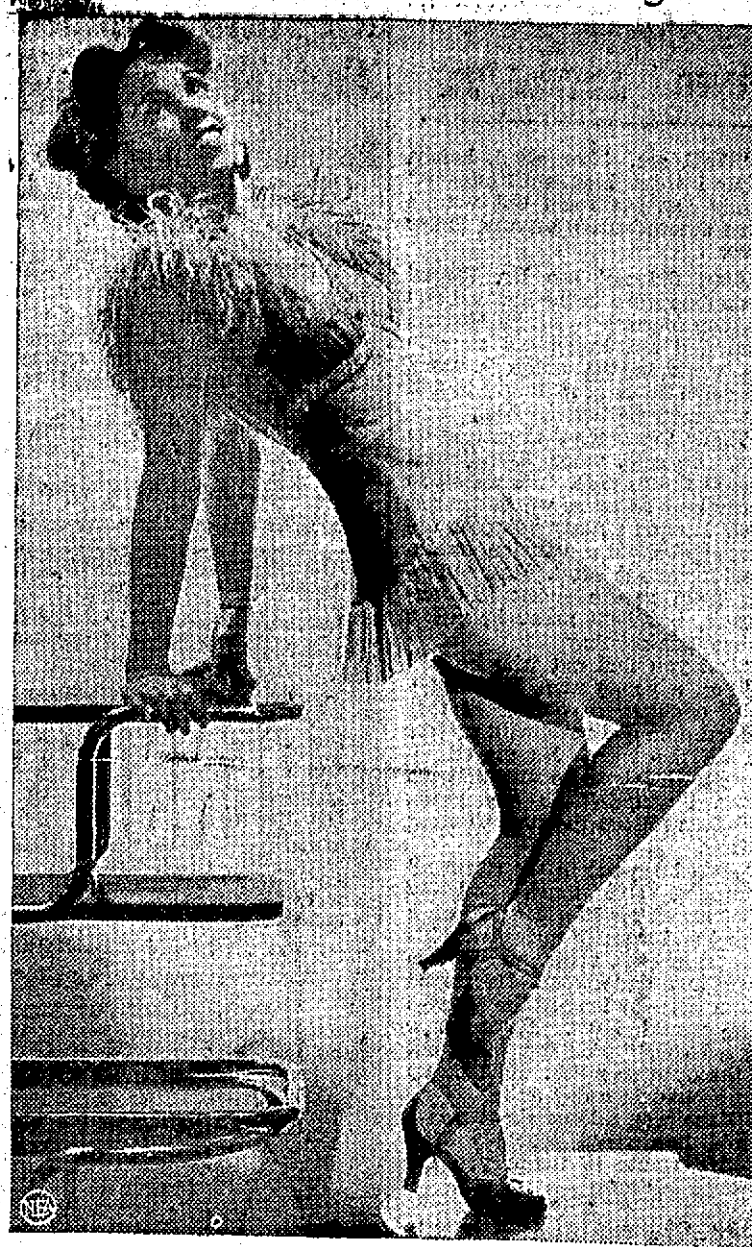

The climax came when the Andrews Sisters rose to sing a fairly new swing tune entitled "Hold Tight," which barely has made a stir of Tin Pan Alley. But Sing Sing's populace seemed to know all about "Hold Tight."

"Mother, I just have to have a new hat."

"Why your blue one is only a month old. And the brown's still good. Besides, you have that green beret. And I was just wondering what had become of the wine felt you got last fall. It is still in style and you looked fine in it. You hardly ever wore it."

"I could not wear it more than a couple of weeks. Don't you remember? I hanged my hair-do, and it was all wrong, the hat, I mean."

"But Marian, surely some of those hats will be all right until I get your spring outfit. I only got one new hat this winter. I think it would be foolish and extravagant to buy you two hats so close together. What's wrong?"

"Well, don't you notice that I am letting my hair grow still longer? It takes a certain shade, you know, to look smart with extra long hair. I want a pan-cake that sits over one eye and gives you sort of a Russian look."

"Russian look. My lands. Every-thing on earth now with you girls has to be a Russian look. Anything less than that's queer. The Russians are probably laughing themselves to death."

"Well, call it French and Chinese or what ever you want. It is a certain something anyway. Trust me to catch on to all the new ways to wear hair and pick hats."

"Yes, but I can't trust you father forking over more money for your great inspirations, my dear. And I have only the money for regular bills just now."

"That's the way it goes," Marian said hopelessly. "Want me to be popular, but how can I? It is a fight every time to look decent. I can't be away behind the other girls."

"If it takes a quick-change artist to be recognized as good sport and fine girl, then it's time you went to another school."

"Must!" Have Glamor

"They are all the same," said Marian. "I know. You have to have glamor or you're out. The girls all change their hair-do's every month or so, and even the way they wear their make-up.

"You have to make everybody stare or you are a dud. I am going to use straight lips and straight eyebrows if I get that hat. I'm changing it."

1 THE "SHOVE OFF" "Hiking" an ice-boat at 2 miles a minute is a thrilling and chancy sport. First in line is George J. Seger's Alva II. He is Commodore of the Lake Hopatcong (N. J.) Ice Yacht Club... has won many titles because of his skill and daring.

2 HERE'S THE ALVA II, windward runner high in the air, as Seger races faster than the wind on the starboard tack. "After a race it is sure swell to let up, light up a Camel," says Commodore Seger.

3 LOOK OUT! Ice-boat pilots need the skill and nerves of racing-car drivers. Like those in many other thrilling activities, ice-boat sailors find that Camels never jangle the nerves. Commodore Seger reports: And they're so mild, taste so good!

COSTLIER TOBACCO—Smoke 6 packs of Camels and find out why they are the LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE in America

ICE-BOAT RACER SAYS:
"For smoking pleasure at its best...
Let up—Light up a Camel"

4 NOW'S THE TIME for a Camel. The race over, Seger pushes back his goggles, lets up and lights up. "Camels never tire my taste or jangle my nerves," he says. That goes for Frank Rodecker, champion aquaplaner—Marie McMillin, parachute jumper—Ralph Guldahl, U.S. Open golf champion, and millions of other smokers who also appreciate Camel's extra-mild, costlier tobaccos. See if you, too, don't find more true smoking enjoyment, cigarette for cigarette, in mild, fragrant Camels.

1939 Frigidaire Has Meat-Tender

Special Compartment Is Located Beneath the Freezer Unit

For many decades housewives have known that unless they cover the refrigerator meat they place in their refrigerator—either with wax paper or a dish—discoloration will set in within a short time and the particular cut of beef or pork loses its appearance or freshness. This is one reason why some women often keep these types of meats in the original wrappers that come from the butcher, although it is not considered the best practice.

Sometimes the housewife places the meat either right on top of the cake of ice in an ice box or open on a shelf of an electric refrigerator. In either case, the meat frequently loses its appetizing appearance, and often its tastiness.

For the past several years, scientists and electric refrigeration engineers have been working on the problem of overcoming this condition.

With this thought in mind, a container, known as a Meat-Tender has been devised by Frigidaire engineers, a feature which is incorporated in their Master and Cold-Wall series of 1939 refrigerators. It consists of a special compartment, located conveniently under the freezer unit, intended primarily for meat storage. It is designed to perform two important functions in connection with meat storage. First, air circulation is controlled, and second, all exterior surfaces of the meat are exposed to such controlled circulation of air.

In order that the meats do not rest on the bottom of the container, a special bar rack has been provided which allows the controlled circulation of air to surround the meat completely. Special vents in the side of the container permit the proper circulation. Thus, prevention of excessive drying or excessive sweating of meat is provided by such a control of air circulation.

When the Meat-Tender is not required for the storage of meat, it may be used to hold an extra supply of ice cubes, frozen foods and other articles requiring extra cold temperatures.

This new feature will be welcomed

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC' BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, N.E.A. SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

Yesterday! Returning from a confinement case, Alan finds a wrecked coupe on the highway. He pulls open a door and the body of a man opens to Alan's feet.

CHAPTER V

AUTOMATICALLY, Alan had his gloves off and was reaching for the man's wrist. The pulse was faint—very faint. Alan figured quickly. The car had passed him before 8, and it was now after 5. Nine hours, unconscious in that blizzard. No man could live. Even if he had escaped injury when the car overturned, he should have frozen to death.

The hum of the electric heater, still running, answered one of Alan's unspoken questions. But there was no time for delay. This man must be taken to a hospital, at once. Half dragging, half carrying his heavy burden, Alan got the man up the embankment and into his own warm car. There was a chance, but even minutes would count now.

Price's farm flashed by. Pity Price hadn't seen that wreck. Price had probably gone to bed as soon as he saw Alan safely by. An interne and a sleepy orderly answered his ring at the ambulance entrance of the hospital.

"Get that man upstairs, quickly," Alan ordered. "Get him out of those clothes—Lord knows he has on plenty—get stimulants. We'll have to work if we're going to save him."

As the two men unloaded his charge from his car and onto a cart, Alan hurried up the stairs. Farrell met him in the doctors' office.

"Just saw you drive in, Alan. You didn't have any trouble?" Farrell's voice betrayed his concern.

"No, no trouble at Carroll's. That was easy. Ran into a young fellow in a wrecked car. Evidently been there most of the night. He's half, or completely frozen. But he's still alive."

"Was he hurt in the accident?" "Can't tell, yet. He was so bundled up and I didn't want to risk losing any time getting him here. He has a chance, but it's not a very big one, I'm afraid."

"Know who he is?" "Never saw him before, or his car either, until he almost hit me head on as I was driving out last night. I wondered then if he'd make the turn safely—and, he didn't. Car turned over. Heater must have kept him warm for a little while. He should be ready now, if Dr. Jones hurried. Coming up?"

"Just a minute, Alan," Dr. Farrell's voice was kind, fatherly. "You've been up all night, son. Why don't you go home and get some sleep, and I'll look after your snow victim?"

"But Doctor Farrell—" "No argument, now, son. I can take care of him all right. I've been having people out for years, drunk and sober. But I couldn't take care of Mrs. Olivia. She'll need you, and you'll have to be wide awake to pull her through. Mrs. Miles isn't going to be easy, either, with a first baby."

"I'm not tired, I'll be all right." But Alan knew that Farrell was right. Reluctantly he gave in, slipped into his overcoat again.

"He's all yours, then, Dr. Farrell. Let me know how he makes out, will you?"

IT was afternoon before Alan awakened. Emily was sitting on the side of his bed, when he opened his eyes.

"Sorry to wake you, darling," she said. "The hospital called. They'll be needing you there soon. I thought you might like a bite to eat before you go. Lunch will be ready as soon as you're dressed. And Dr. Farrell called, too. Said the man you found in the snow was still alive and had a fighting chance."

"Good. Farrell could pull him through if anyone could. I don't see yet how that fellow escaped being frozen to death. How's the weather?"

"It's snowing again, not like last night, but softly falling, huge flakes. The papers say the cold wave is general over the whole country. One of the biggest snowstorms in years."

"I could see that last night. Say, how was Peterson? What did he have to say? Did you have a nice party?"

"It was wonderful, Alan. Dr. Peterson and Mrs. Peterson are so nice. He certainly admires you. And guess what he wants, dear."

"I'm not much good at guessing. Probably he wants me to pay up my alumni dues."

"Alan. . . Dr. Peterson wants you to come back to St. Louis, to teach obstetrics at the school. He's going to write you all about it. You'll go, of course, won't you?"

"Let's not cross any bridges. And I'll believe that job offer when I see it on paper. Maybe he was just making conversation—he knew it would please you."

"He really was quite serious. . . He and Dr. Farrell argued about it for a long time. I know he means it."

"We'll see. Now scoot, honey, while I dress. Man, am I hungry." Emily left the room but with a quite determination burning in her eyes.

Alan did not see Dr. Farrell upon his return to the hospital. He soon forgot both his half-frozen man and Dr. Peterson's offer in his work in the delivery room. He came home at midnight to find Dr. Farrell waiting for him.

"Your 'snow man' is getting on fine," he said, when Alan joined him at the bedside. "He wasn't so badly banged up as we thought at first. He had a nasty bump on the head, and slight concussion, but no fracture of the skull. He's suffering from severe shock and exposure, but he'll make it, unless pneumonia sets in."

"Did you find out who he is?"

"Yes, a young man, Eric Kane, chief engineer in charge of that federal dam and reclamation project up on the river. He stayed up there until late to be sure that the blizzard wouldn't do any harm, and then missed the turn there at Price's."

"He'd been out in the storm all afternoon and that's probably what saved his life. He had on a jacket and sweater underneath his sheepskin coat, boots, and woolen socks and underwear. He stayed warm twice as long as the average man would have. He's got a rugged constitution too, being out in the open so much. He'll be up and around in a day or so."

"Kane was asking about you—I told him you'd probably drop in. He wants to thank you for saving his life."

BUT Alan did not stop at Eric Kane's room in the hospital. He told himself, when the thought occurred to him, that it was because he had little time or opportunity to visit this wing of the hospital, and besides, he said, he had turned the case over to Farrell and he had no more to do with it. But the real reason was that he was afraid—afraid of the embarrassment the grateful man's thanks might cause him.

If anyone had done any saving of life, the honor belonged to Farrell, not to him. Alan had found the man, brought him to the hospital—that was true—but anyone would have done that. Perhaps if Alan could have looked into the future he might have considered, leaving Eric Kane to die in the snow.

It was no wonder that he was surprised, two evenings later to find a stranger knocking at his door.

"Come in, come in," Alan said as he opened the door.

"Thanks," said the stranger, "I will. My name is Eric Kane."

Ash Flat Winner of State Tourney

Win Over Pine Bluff 53 to 35, for State Championship

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—A big Ash Flat team easily won the class A Arkansas high school basketball championship Saturday night by downing the Pine Bluff Zebras in the tournament finals, 53 to 35.

Coach Charles Taylor's Eagles gave their best performance when it counted most and had the score doubled most of the first three quarters.

Gordon Carpenter, the Eagles' six foot, six inch center, was in great form bagging 25 points for individual honors. Seventeen of Carpenter's points came in the first half. Everett Payne the Zebra's small forward hit the hoop for 15 points.

The Eagles held a four-inch average height advantage over Coach Allen Dunaway's Zebras.

Ash Flat was ahead at the half, 28 to 14.

The Violet Hill Coyotes won the class B basketball title by winning a point-for-point battle in the finals over the Sidney Cardinals in overtime, 24 to 22.

The regulation playing time ended with the two teams tied 22-all, but Ronald Blevins, Coyote forward, dropped in a field goal from the side of the court in the first minute of the extra period.

Never more than four points separated the two rivals. Sidney held a half time advantage, 11 to 9. Violet Hill took a 19 to 16 lead at the three-quarter mark, but a field goal by Guard Jason Frizzell gave the Cardinals a 22 to 21 advantage in the final minute of play. Center Doyle Largen of the Coyotes tied the game with a free toss just before the contest ended.

Frizzell paced individual scorers with 19 points, all on field goals. Largen tallied nine points.
